

ABSTRACT

A medical electrical lead includes an elastomeric multi-lumen tube, which includes a lumen having a substantially elliptical cross-section through which a conductor having a substantially circular cross-section may extend. The substantially elliptical cross-section of the lumen includes a minor axis having a first length and being deformable such that the first length of the minor axis extends to a second length.